U. S. ARMY THE WORLD'S WONDER

No Other Nation On Earth Has Accomplished Such Results In Organizing and Drilling Men.

OUR VOLUNTEER MATERIAL

Their Adaptability Unequaled In All the Trying Emergencies of War.

By W. L. Hill, Capt. of First Montana Infantry.

The whole civilized world is astonished at what the United States has accomplished in the last year and a half. Never before did a nation when so unprepared commence war by mobilizing upwards of a quarter of a million men within three months. No other nation under the sun could duplicate the order. The mere organization of such an army was a marvel, and rather than complain of the mistakes that were made, we should wonder that the tasks could be completed with so few errors. There may have been embalmed beef and moldy hardtack, but the fact remains that the army was put into the field and whipped everything it went up against. The more we consider the details, the more wonderful it seems. Yet we never tire of hearing the details and perhaps the most interesting subject of all is the man behind the gun.

Colonel Roosevelt in his very interesting history of the Rough Riders leaves one with the impression that the regulars are the boys who do the work; that with the noble exception of the Rough Riders, the volunteer army left a great deal to be desired, and that the superiority of his command consisted not in better drill or finer discipline, but in the personal characteristics of his men. It is interesting to note that most of the Western volunteers possessed just those characteristics for which Col. Roosevelt commends his own men, and whatever may have been the conditions in Cuba, or in the Philippine Islands, the volunteers—it can be said without any invidious comparisons—did just as good work as any regulars could possibly do.

The Rough Riders' regiment was the most popular in the army and probably it was so because of the romance that attaches to the idea of a pioneer or frontiersman. They were supposed to be gathered from the very jumping-off place of civilization—even from the "undesirable states." Since Fenimore Cooper's days the pioneer has been worshipped in America and those who know the old Western hunters and prospectors know that they still retain much of the picturesque innocence and kindly philosophy of the "Leather Stocking." The Western volunteers are not only inspired by the recollection of the citizen soldiers who fought at Bunker Hill and Lexington, but are also the sons of men who after their share in the civil war fought Indians on the plains and in the mountains. From their childhood they have heard stirring, true tales of adventure by flood and field. Their recreation has been hunting, fishing and camping out, and there could be no better training for a soldier. They have learned to look after themselves—this is perhaps the secret of the American soldier's success, his self confidence, the everlasting nerve that would lead him to "Great the embarrassed Gods Or match with Destiny for beers."

One never ceases to wonder at the way in which men from every walk in life, learned to adapt themselves to circumstances. Educated gentlemen used to all the refinements of life, without a murmur, stood in line to get their tin plate full of "mulligan" or "slum." Rough fellows unaccustomed to regard the comfort of others would share their already short rations with a comrade who had none, and all would step out into a storm of lead with no more fear than if it had been a spring snow shower in Montana.

They were sick and sore, tired out, often hungry and thirsty, but they went on wading swamps, swimming rivers, crawling through jungles, from a simple sense of duty. Complaints are made that there is no progress; if not a foot of ground was gained, still it was worth while, for the sake of poor human nature. As Longfellow says: "When ere is spoken noble thought When ere a noble deed is wrought Our hearts in glad surprise To higher glories rise."

It is shameful that such men as these should be belied as "rakes and drunkards." They had their faults, no doubt, but any one who served with them can truthfully and fitly say: "Thank God what'er come after, I have lived and toiled with men."

YELLOW JOURNAL TROUBLES.

They Have a Hard Time With the Philippine Situation. In a yellow newspaper office, editor to sub-editor: "Have you yet written the daily column about General Otis being an incompetent, timid and lazy old church deacon, afraid of the sound of a gun?" THE WORLD'S REMEDY for Disease; restores these great nerve centres to healthy action. The blood is made clean, rich and in full quantity. Muscle tissues are nourished, invigorated, and the body is healthy. Immediate relief is given to the melancholy.

Mrs Jennie H. Steele, Vaughns, Ga., writes: "I have suffered for ten years with what the doctors call neuralgia of the liver; and never had any relief from the doctor's medicine, or anything else, until I began using Paine's Celery Compound. I have taken about three bottles and have not suffered any since I first began to take it. "I feel that it has saved my life, and hope all who suffer as I have will give Paine's Celery Compound a fair trial."

THE TACOMA WAY.

The meeting of members of the chamber commerce this evening should be attended by every member. Not only that, but every member who has anything to suggest "for the good of the order" or of Tacoma should make his views known. In this way an interest will be created and valuable suggestions will be received. It would be good for the city and its people if a routing meeting could be held once a month, at which members would be heard from three to five minutes on live questions, and to which members would bring outsiders who might become interested in the work at hand.
